Course Title: Home Economics

Teacher Contact Information:

- vanessa.batista@wearetherockofcf.org
- (407) - 697- 5176

Course Overview:

- This course will be used to teach students basic skills that will help balance the responsibility scale
- between parents and children and eventually their communities. We will be teaching skills like laundry,
- sewing crocheting, knitting, taking care of their bodies, shopping and cooking, all while enjoying and taking
- pride in doing their part. Please let me know if there are any allergies I need to know about.

Supplies Lists are provided on the TRA Website.

The Successful Student:

- The successful student will be open minded to try all of the new skills that will be introduced. Students will
- complete all projects that are assigned to them on time. It is also important that each student complete
- their journal entries for each week. This will be a heavily graded part of each weeks responsibility.

The Successful Parent:

- I believe that, if parents partner with me for this educational experience, they will not only experience
- maturity in their children, but also witness their children grab hold of responsibility as Christ did. Thank you
- for making the choice remind your child about motor skills that are slowly no longer, so that they take autonomy for using simple skills like sewing a button onto their shirt.

Homework Policy:

- Much of the homework will be project based. I will also be assigning them, reflective, journal entries, so that
- we can document their experience as they learn these new skills. The homework will be clearly outlined
- each week. The homework will not be accepted more than a week late.
